

How has Management changed?

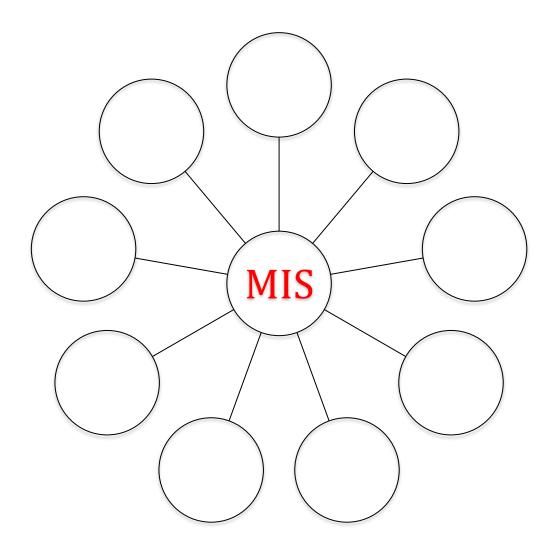

To begin with, how do you think management has changed in the last 20 years?
What are management and leadership like in China? (consider: control, hierarchy, decision-making, rewards, communication etc.)
Technological change has increased the speed that information flows through organizations/companies.
What kind of Technological change do we have?

20 years ago in HAT: Consider how slow information used to flow. Paperwork, manual calculations and looking through irrelevant information to find what you're looking for. Human errors, to time collect and analyse information By the time the information had been collected and analysed, the information was out-of-date and had expired Therefore, how could we make good and accurate management decisions?

Nowadays in HAT: Today we have Management information Systems (MIS): an information system connected by joining different computers together in order to share data and resources. This allows us to have up-to-date information regarding the company's performance: for example: occupancy forecasts sales

MIS at a hotel: complete the different departments in the circles

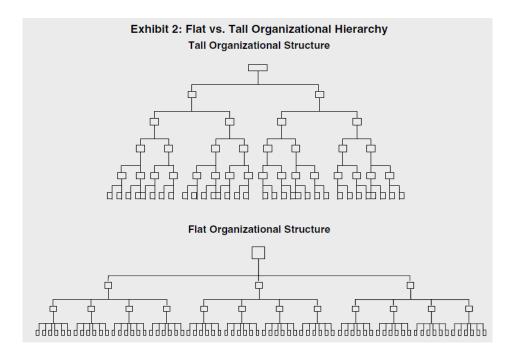

Managers now have information from all of the departments.
How does this help the manager and the hotel operate?

MIS: changes in business conditions, expectations of guests and employees has opened new opportunities for leaders to rethink and reinvent the way they do business.

Many hospitality organizations have now:

- Flattened their organizational structure
- Redistributed power and responsibility
- Released decision-making power to the lowest levels
- Thus, redefining roles, responsibilities and competencies of managers at every level.

What are the advantages and disadvantages these structures?

	Advantages	Disadvantages
Flat structure
Tall structure
The modern manager: what do you think a 'Modern Manager' is and has?

'The Manager in Me'

- I. Can you see yourself as a Manager in the future? Why or why not?
- 2. What traits/skills/attributes do you believe that you now have that will make you a good manager and leader?
- 3. How can you develop them (traits/skills/attributes) to be better?
- 4. Is management and leadership the same thing? What are the differences?
- 5. Write how you think Management may change in the next 20 years? What can you do to compete with new graduates?
